

Fiberboard plate

Overview

MDF is manufactured in a "dry process" with a synthetic adhesive. Boards are categorised according to their density: High Density Fibreboard (HDF) with a density $\geq 800 \text{ kg/m}^3$, light MDF (L-MDF) with a density $\leq 650 \text{ kg/m}^3$ and ultra light MDF (UL-MDF) with a density $\leq 550 \text{ kg/m}^3$. Wood-based medium density fiberboard formed by resin-bonded wood fibers pressed into a panel format under high pressure and heat. Wood fiber insulation boards or soft fiber insulation boards are mainly used in building insulation. By changing the. The wood fiber board is a natural and versatile building material, ideal for clay and lime plastering, as well as for use as an insulation and structural reinforcement element. It provides reliable solutions for interior and exterior walls, ceilings, and roofs, combining functionality with a. Once is enough: A special U-connection profile is mounted on the window frame, where it enables revision-free alignment of the PlateFix reveal element. Everything has been thought of: Thanks to the 45-degree bevel of the plastering profile, the mounting adhesive can be easily applied between the.
